I CULTURE

Korean culture attracts increasing number of tourists as this is a place where the modern culture meets the traditional. The world has witnessed the development of Korean entertainment industry and our music, films and dramas are becoming more and more popular among young people. The Korean language is no doubt a hit for international students and we are seeing a great increase in students attending our language school every year.

Come join our language class, learn the history of Korean characters and its development and train yourself to be a Korean master! Our teachers, staff and volunteers will all be your language buddies. We also organize club activities for those who are interested in Korean culture. We have Taekwondo class where you can wear the white Taekwondo costume and get a hang of this traditional martial arts and learn the philosophy in it. We have K-POP dance class for those dance maniacs and we believe it is a great chance to show you how we Korean people love dancing and how we make you fall in love with the K-POP dancing. We also have the Calligraphy class where you'll learn how to write characters with a brush and how to improve your hand writing. All our program participants enjoy the club activities. Come and experience for yourself!

SCENERY

Seoul has so much to offer as the nation's No. 1 tourist attraction city. We surely will not let you miss all these beautiful sceneries. We've organized the trip to the Cheonggyecheon stream, which is a 11km long modern stream that runs through downtown Seoul. Located at the university area, we'll also take you to the Hongdae and Shinchon which are the most popular place for young people. We'll go there in the evening as all stories start at night in these places.

If you are interested in buying some Korean products or souvenirs here, we'll also take you to Myeongdong, where locate the biggest duty-free shopping mall. Namsan Tower is another must go tourist attraction on the Namsan Mountain in the central of Seoul. When you go there, you'll discover thousands of padlocks writing with messages and attached to the fence to show their eternal love or wishes. Make sure to write your wishes on your own padlock and lock down to the fence to make your dream come true.

If you have other places or cities to go to, please come to our staff for help. We'll help you make detailed travel plans to make sure you've seen every bit you want to see of this beautiful country.

DELICACY

The fact that there are over 100 different types of kimchi should tell you something about the pride Koreans have in their food. Korean cuisine has evolved over time because of cultural changes, but it remains a major aspect of the national identity. There are too much food to list one by one for you. I'll introduce a few dishes here and you can come to explore more yourself.

Kimchi

Kimchi I believe is known to all, but the different local dishes made with Kimchi or eaten with kimchi are only to be found when you are in Korea. Kimchi can be dated back to Silla Dynasty (around 2,000 years ago), and it is the beloved spicy sidekick at every Korean table.

Tteokbokki

This iconic red-orange street food is so popular there's an entire part of Seoul just devoted to the steamed and sliced rice cakes (tteok), cooked with fish cakes (oden) and scallions in a sweet and spicy sauce made of chili paste.

Chefs have been known to put all sorts of things inside the sauce, from the black soybean paste to plain old ketchup. Call us masochists, but one thing is certain: the more pepper, the better.

Hangover Stew

Give Korea's dedicated drinking culture, it's not surprising that its hangover-curing culture is equally as developed, from pre-drinking drinks to post-drinking drinks to a glorious array of spicy and steamy stews and soups. Made from a beef broth, with cabbage, bean sprouts, radish and chunks of congealed ox blood, the deeply satisfying taste does wonders to kick-start your sluggish brain in the morning.

Samgyeopsal

The best part of eating in a samgyeopsal restaurant is the atmosphere — a rollicking party punctuated by soju shots, pork strips sizzling on a grill and shouts for “one more serving, please!”. Served with lettuce, perilla leaves, sliced onions and raw garlic kimchi, it's smudged in ssamjang or salt and pepper in sesame oil.

MYONGJI SPECIAL

Musical is one of the best majors in Myongji, and we've cultivated plenty of musical actors and actresses in the past. We organized two musical performances during the program. One is the musical "Jump" and the other is musical "Chef" in order to give you a better understanding of Myongji.
